ETERNITY REGISTRY

My Digital Afterlife Wishes

Your digital afterlife, on your terms.

A personal record to share with people you trust.

This is not a will, contract, or other legal document.

How to use this form

Fill this in while you are living, at your own pace. Give a copy to the people you trust. Keep one for yourself. Review it when your wishes change.

You can print the form and write by hand, or type into the fillable PDF and save it on a device you control. Eternity Registry does not collect these answers and does not keep an account for you. What you write stays with you unless you choose to share it.

This form is a personal record of your wishes. It is not a will, trust, power of attorney, contract, or other legal document. It will not, on its own, require a company, a court, or a platform to follow your instructions. Laws about digital accounts, copyright, and a person's voice or likeness vary, and they change. If you need a legally binding instrument, speak with a qualified professional.

Be careful with passwords. Do not write account passwords, recovery codes, or one-time codes on this form. Name the person who should be told where those are kept, if you have already arranged that separately.

Skip any section that does not apply. "I have not decided" is a complete answer.

Wishes about AI recreations

Some services can generate new text, audio, or images that are meant to sound or look like a person who has died, using writing, photos, or recordings. This page is for your wishes about that. Sharing this page with your family does not, by itself, bind a company to follow them.

MY WORDS AND WRITING (EMAILS, MESSAGES, POSTS, JOURNALS)

- ☐ I consent, with limits I note below
- ☐ I refuse
- ☐ I have not decided

MY VOICE OR A RECORDING OF MY VOICE

- ☐ I consent, with limits I note below
- ☐ I refuse
- ☐ I have not decided

MY LIKENESS (PHOTOGRAPHS, VIDEO, A MOVING OR STILL IMAGE OF ME)

- ☐ I consent, with limits I note below
- ☐ I refuse
- ☐ I have not decided

Limits, if any — for example only close family, only a named project, never for advertising, never to speak as if I were still alive.

Who may decide if a request comes up and I did not cover it here?

Who should handle my accounts

List the kinds of accounts that matter (email, phones, social media, photos, banking you have already arranged separately, a shop, a domain). Do not write passwords here. Note what you would like done — for example close the account, memorialize it, keep a record of posts, or transfer access if the service allows it.

ACCOUNT OR SERVICE	WHO SHOULD HANDLE IT	WHAT I WOULD LIKE DONE

Devices, backups, or a password manager — who should be told that they exist, and where (not the codes themselves).

Memorial and public wishes

If there is an online memorial, tribute page, or public post, what would you like it to include — or not include?

May photographs of you be shared after your death? Any limits (which photos, which people, which platforms)?

Is there a charity, cause, or place you would like mentioned, or money given to, instead of flowers or gifts?

Anything you would like said, or would rather not be said, at a funeral, memorial, or celebration of life.

Anything else your people should know.

Who should have this, and when I last reviewed it

People who should receive a copy (and whether they already have one).

I intend to review this form again by (a date or a reminder, if you have one).

I understand that this form is a personal record of my wishes, not a legal document, and that companies and institutions are not automatically bound by it.
